

DREAMPIRE

A place where even ordinary people can demonstrate their creativity and share their extraordinary dream stories

2012.04.13. Budapest

Dreampire is a vast dream collection where people share their most memorable dreams in an audiovisual format. The magic of the moving images enhances the non-verbal layer of the intimate, humorous, mystical dreams of regular people. Dream tellers lived a unique story, of which they are the only witnesses. By telling the story, the dreamers become creators.

Our Story

Dreams have been making people curious since they dream. The core team of Dreampire were a handful of good friends who have been talking about capturing the dreams in a way that the holistic, non verbal atmosphere of the dream shines through. That magic appears when the dreamer performs, recalls her dream. The founders happen to all work in the movie industry so they decided to give it a shot and they simply started to collect dreams. At first, they wanted to create a documentary in the “speaking faces” genre, but after thousands of dream recordings, they realized that there can be much more in the project because dreams are more universal and constantly actual in our life - that was the point when the idea of Dreampire popped out. A place where people can share their most memorable dreams, connect with other dreamers whose dream experiences are similar - and who knows, if the dreaming community reaches a critical mass, interesting patterns may emerge reflecting the “dream state” of the world.

What we found so far...

Several dreams proved to be future predictors. With bigger sample and statistical analysis, and higher “resolution, the base of these predictions can be further clarified. Different cultures view the significance of dreams very differently but this unique view tells a lot about the mindset of a culture. Like a language, dreams also the reflection of thinking. Dreams can also teach us a lot about the general inner workings of our mind!

A love story also begun during a dream recording session. Who knows, maybe mutual dreams will connect people who wouldn't meet otherwise.

By verbalizing, we might understand our own dream better and others similar dreams can bring insights to our own dream motives.

Our Vision

Mankind has put astronauts on the Moon but dreams are still a very mystic territory. We believe that with big enough dream samples, a pattern will emerge, an evidence of a collective consciousness might arise. What if dreams really have future predictor power? That would be huge! One dream is just a mystical piece - but thousands of puzzle pieces might complete a comprehensible picture. Is dreamland a medium of communication? Is there connection between people who dream with the same motives? Are we connected through our dreams somehow? These are all super fascinating questions for which the Dreampire can bring answers.

The vision of Dreampire is to provide a showcase opportunity for the dreamers and at the same time enable interaction between them. By connecting two dreamers who dreamt with the same motive, fascinating things can happen: they may better understand their own dreams through the reflection of the dream-mate's dreams. Even without sharing, the simple act of verbalizing dreams can bring out new details and clarify the whole experience.

With enough data, a global dream state pattern will emerge which will tell a lot about us, Mankind as a whole. We are tiny droplets in the ocean but which droplet wouldn't be curious to see the ocean?

The dreams might predict the future. Is it fiction or not? Analyzing the data, this question will have much stronger grounds than ever before. And if the result is positive, that will be a game changer. This is strongly fiction right now but Dreampire might present the proof.
